INTERESTING MEETING YESTERDAY.

An informal meeting of a number of the members of the City Council and other citizens, was held yesterday afternoon, in the Council champer. Present : Messrs. Brazleman, Bright, Christian, Foster, Oliver, Pulliam, Purcell, Walker, Curtis, Gilman, Metzger, Jenkins, on the part of the City Council, and Messrs. A. L. Pridemore, State Senator for Lee county, W. P. M. Kellam, of the Board of Aldermen, Messrs. J. E. Maury, Dr. Blair Burwell, Mr. Thomas W. McCance, president of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Board of Aldermen, Franklin Stearns, R. H. Maury, John Enders, George S. Palmer, General J. D. Imboden, Colonel W. P. Burwell. At 6:30 the meeting was called to order by Mr. John Purcell, and, on his motion. Mr. Franklin Stearns was invited to preside.

On motion of Mr. Purcell, the meeting reolved itself into a meeting of citizens. Mr. Christian, a member of the Common Council, said it had been the desire of a number of the members of the Board of Aldermen and the Council to have a joint session, in order to hear General Imboden on the subject of the Richmond and Trans-Alleghany Narrow-Gauge railroad, and he therefore moved that he be heard. Agreed

General Imboden commenced his address by making a brief statement of the history of the enterprise and alluding to those counties in Southwest Virginia which are not traversed by any railroad. His very deep interest in Richmond and those counties, and the knowledge of their great wealth, resulted in the application to the Legislature for a charter for a narrow-gauge railroad from sence in Europe the first year of the application it was not granted, but upon his return the subject was again revived, and last session the Legislature granted a most liberal charter to the Richmond and Trans-Alleghany Narrow-Gauge Railroad Company. General Imboden continued his remarks by saying that a company of gentlemen in England would undertake the construction of this road if the counties along its line would agree to subscribe $5,000 per mile. The fact that there are ten or more counties through which there is not a mile of railroad to induce the building of this road to Richham, Floyd, Bland, Tazewell, Buchanan, what is that? > undoubtedly secure its construction. Mr. Pridemore, of Lee county, who was present by special invitation, was next introduced and addressed the meeting. He said he had had nothing in the world to do fore; but his heart warmed up for the mountain region from which he came; but even the General had not the least idea of the richness or value of that country. One little county furnace turns out some of the best pig metal made in this country. This iron, would you believe it, gentlemen, is hauled to market for fifty cents per ton, and the rich iron which the mountains yield is sold for 163 cents per yard. Would you believe it when I tell you that all the products of that section which brings any money to our people are transported down a little stream over

In conclusion, he said that he would like to know whether it was the desire of the Richmond people that Kentucky should unite with them in this great road, and connect with them at Comberland Gap. If so, he thought he could use the information to great advantage in a visit to Kentucky in the interest of Southwest Virginia, which he proposed to pay in a short time. Mr. Burwell said be fully endorsed all that had been said by Generals Imboden and Pridemore of the vast mineral and agricultural wealth of the southwestern counties now land-locked, which would be opened up to Richmond by the construction of this Narrow-Gauge railroad. He stated that Richmond presented the most anomalous situation of any city on the continent-situated in the heart of a great State, a State which ought to be the common carrier between the Mississippi valley and the Atlantic, she was yet a small town of 60,000, after an expenditure of more than sixty millions of dollars in internal improvements on the part of the State. Why was it that this vast expenditure was contributing to the growth of other cities, and especially those outside of her limits? Why was this so? Because Baltimore had encircled her in her anaconda coil; because she had been cut off from her Southwest trade; and Baltimore was now threatening her communications with the Chesapeake and Obio Railroad. To reacquire the former it was necessary to build the Narrow-Gauge railroad, extending from Richmond to Pound Gap, 300 miles. To assure herself of the latter, it was DEEDS RÉCORDED.—During the month of be compelled to prorate under the provinecting her canal with that great line of rail-July one bundred and ninety deeds were recorded in the clerk's office of the Chancery to deposit at Richmond the splint and bituminous coals of the Kanawha cheaper than by any other route.
